ters what he calls "natural monopolies," or, in other words, that it increases the cost of food and the rent of land. His arguments in support of this position are strangely inconclusive, and the whole theory is upset by the example of the English corn-laws. It was not free trade, but protection, that made food dear in England; and it would have become still dearer if the corn laws had not been repealed. Professor Patten advocates protectionism, not as a temporary expedient, but as "part of a fixed national policy" (p. 8). He maintains that "our economic conditions are so different from those of any foreign nation that an American industrial policy must be of a distinct type from that of other nations" (p. 14); and he thinks it best for us to "isolate ourselves" as much as possible from the nations of Europe. Such are some of the salient points of the work; but we doubt if they will have much influence on public opinion.

A New Method of Treating Disease.

HOSPITAL REMEDIES.

What are they? There is a new departure in the treatment of disease. It consists in the collection of the specifics used by noted specialists of Europe and America, and bringing them within the reach of all. For instance, the treatment pursued by special physicians who treat indigestion, stomach and liver troubles only, was obtained and prepared. The treatment of other physicians celebrated for curing catarrh was procured, and so on till these incomparable cures now include disease of the lungs, kidneys, female weakness, rheumatism and nervous debility.

This new method of "one remedy for one disease" must appeal to the common sense of all sufferers, many of whom have experienced the ill effects, and thoroughly realize the absurdity of the claims of Patent Medicines which are guaranteed to cure every ill out of a single bottle, and the use of which, as statistics prove, has ruined more stomachs than alcohol. A circular describing these new remedies is sent free on receipt of stamp to pay postage by Hospital Remedy Company, Toronto, Canada, sole proprietors.
